

I am commenting on the issue about using cell phones on the airplanes.. I am a flight attendant for years, and i've experienced just during boarding how annoying it is for psgrs to be talking on their cell phones. They could be fighting with their spouse or just talking too loud. And at 35,000 feet? There is no where to go to get some privacty so they can talk on the phone. They may be taking it to the lavatory just so they can talk in privacy. In which case, cause them to tie up the lavatory and having other psgrs wait longer to use the lavatory facitlities. Currently, while we are doing our beverage service, psgrs who are listening to their MP3 or walkmans has to be asked 2,3, sometime 4 times 'what kind of beverage' they would be having. Or, those psgrs who watch their DVD's without a headset, and it becomes annoying to other psgrs who wants to read their reading materials, or just simply relax and close their eyes. This would definitely change the future of traveling on the airplane... Now psgrs are going to have to start carrying ear plugs with them to travel so they don't have to hear the psgr who is sitting on the left, on the right, front of him , or behind and listen to their conversations. It would definitly become a big conference/meeting taking place in a crowded plane where psgrs have no place else to go when they want to run away from the other psgr who has been talking on the phone for the past hour. I am very much against this. Flying on all these flts everyday with a full plane of psgrs talking on their cel phone would create such a chaos and unsafe place. This can create irate psgrs to one another who wants the other one to get off the phone because he's simply talking way too loud. And to my knowledge, i've read that there's yet no proof if it can interfere with ATC or the navagations system.

Thank you for your time.
